If you work in healthcare, you're likely familiar with malpractice insurance. It's a form of professional liability insurance that can help protect your career should a malpractice claim be filed against you.

Berxi is all about malpractice insurance—and handling malpractice claims. They help insure healthcare professionals like nurses. From policies for nursing students to malpractice insurance nurse practitioner professionals rely on, you can get a policy tailored to your needs.

Of course, Berxi's offerings extend far beyond nursing. They can also help insure a range of healthcare professions. For example, dentists and hygienists can get dentists malpractice insurance.

And if you're a physical therapist, you can get coverage, too! Along with these other healthcare professions, physical therapy is one of many additional professions Berxi can help cover.

Physical Therapy

Physical therapy can be an essential service for many people. It can also be very hands-on when it comes to patient work, which can open doors to potential mistakes. However, your career can be in good hands when you carry professional liability insurance and a malpractice policy.

A physical therapy clinic can also have nurses on staff. In addition to the PT carrying a policy, nurses may want to carry their own policy as well. All angles can be covered with malpractice insurance for RN and other nursing areas. It can be beneficial for individuals to carry their own policies if they want tailored coverage.

Personal Training

Personal trainers can offer powerful services to their clients. They can serve as guides, helping people learn positive fitness habits. Trainers can also create exercise routines, which may be supervised or unsupervised that can help get people into shape and lead more fulfilling lifestyles.

While not incredibly common, issues can arise when serving as a personal trainer. Just like any other healthcare profession, mistakes can happen. For example, an injury may occur during a training session, and your client may hold you responsible. Malpractice insurance can guide you through the claims process.

Yoga Instruction

It might seem an unlikely profession to protect with liability insurance, but it can be essential. Yoga teachers can work directly with clients. From larger classes to 1-on-1 yoga sessions, you may see clients regularly. You may even own your own yoga studio.

Professional liability insurance can protect you and your interests. It comes down to one simple detail: people can injure themselves practicing yoga. If one of your clients is involved in a yoga-related accident (or what they perceive as a yoga-related accident), they may file a claim against you. Berxi can help protect your best interests.
