5 Competition-Ready Glock Upgrades From NDZ Performance

Training for a shooting competition can be tough, but the right Glock parts on your handgun can help. From swapping out the mag release for something easier to hit to adding a magazine extension floor plate for a better grip and extra rounds, NDZ Performance has what you need to get your Glock in competition shape. Here are a few upgrades to check out.

Extended Mag Release

An extended mag release button is one of the most common Glock 19 accessories. Stock Glock mag releases tend to be small and hard to hit, especially when under competitive pressure. If you're wearing gloves, it's even harder. An extended mag release helps solve the problem, plus NDZ Performance offers mag releases in various colors with laser engraving available so you can customize the look of your Glock.

Extended Slide Release

Much like the mag release, the standard slide release can also be hard to hit. Switching out to an extended slide release helps you finish reloading faster instead of having to slingshot the slide. It's an easy modification to make, and it only takes a few minutes. Plus, you can get a slide release in different colors, helping your Glock stand out from the crowd.

Flared Magazine Wells

Are you still rocking a stock Glock? You could be losing precious seconds each time you reload a fresh mag. Adding a flared mag well to your Glock makes it easier to slam a new mag home without even looking. It's often seen as essential for competition-ready guns, helping you shave seconds off your reload time. It could be the difference between standing on the podium or going home with nothing to show for your hard work and training.

An Upgraded Slide

Being able to press check or rack the slide quickly are two essential actions. The problem with a basic Glock slide is that they can be hard to grip, especially while wearing gloves. Meanwhile, an NDZ Performance slide can help you get a better grip, letting you easily slingshot the slide or do a press check, even with gloves on. These upgraded slides feature aggressive serrations and cuts. Plus, it gives your Glock a custom look so you can stand out from the competition.

Extended Magazine Floor Plates

Magazine accessories are among the top Glock 43X accessories that improve the overall shooting experience. They replace the floor plates of standard magazines and can either extend the length of the magazine for extra grip, or provide additional capacity to hold a couple more rounds. Either way, these can have a huge impact on your shooting experience.
