Risk Factors of Impotence in Men:

Comorbid Conditions:

One of the strongest reasons that could lead to ED in men is comorbid conditions. These include

- obesity,
- cardiovascular disease,

- diabetes,
- high blood pressure,
- high cholesterol, and
- neurological condition

Erectile disorder is linked to poor blood flow to the male organ. These comorbid conditions may contribute to a great degree.

Psychosocial factors:

A lot of young men have an abnormal venous outflow of blood to the male organ. This results in an erection loss during the sensual contact. There are a lot of psychosocial factors that can cause erectile disorder. These might include depression or anxiety. These can cause erectile disorder more in young men.
