So, continue reading below to discover the truth behind some of the most popular myths about butt plugs.

Myth: You should only wear butt plugs for two to three hours.

A lot of people think that butt plugs should only be worn for two to three hours. However, this is not true. Many people enjoy wearing them for the entire day or even a week. But when you keep your butt plugs in for an extended time, you need to pay attention to what your body needs. Everyone has a different body, so it is important to see whether you feel like taking a break after three, six, or nine hours. Once you experience some tiredness in your muscles, you should give it a break.

Myth: You just need lube when you are inserting the butt plugs.

Lube is quite important for anal play, no matter what. When you go for extended sessions, it becomes even more crucial. Any dryness on and around the plugs can lead to discomfort. So, you should keep lube nearby when using metal butt plugs. Whenever you feel dry, you can remove the plug and add some lube.

Myth: You cannot wear butt plugs in public.

A lot of people advise against wearing butt plugs in public. Some of them believe that it may fall out and cause quite a scene. However, this ultimately depends on the butt plugs you are using. If you find it difficult to hold it in, you can go for a different type of material or size. Once you find the perfect fit, it will be easy for you to wear it in public. You can go for one with a T-bar base, as it will seamlessly fit between the butt cheeks. So, no one will ever know that you have it on!

Make sure to buy butt plugs that seem comfortable so that you can use them in various locations and for longer durations, according to your preference. Enjoy it in different ways and only do what your body likes.
