Under the Hawaiian Sunset

When you experience the Hawaiian Islands with help from Cuvée, you might find yourself on top of Mauna Kea—Hawaii's highest point—looking at the stars. Or you could find yourself enjoying exquisite sushi and a variety of Hawaiian dishes prepared right in front of you by a Cuvée chef. When the day is done, you can also find yourself getting lost in the sunset while dining on the beach.

With unobstructed views, a Hawaiian sunset can easily be the sunset of a lifetime. Of course, if you don't want to dine directly on the beach, you can always dine at Cuvée's luxury house rentals in full view of the ocean—and the sunset. Dining on the beach can be an immersive experience in and of itself, so if you want to go all out, make it an authentic luau! This incredible blend of entertainment and culture can transform your beach dining experience into your own tropical oasis.

On the Cusp of the Pacific in Los Cabos

On the southern end of Baja California, you'll find Los Cabos. It's almost like venturing to the edge of the world—if your idea of the edge of the world includes exceptional cuisine, delightful drinks, and dancing. It's the perfect way to take in the majesty of this stunning vista where the desert meets the coast. With Cuvée's Los Cabos collection of luxury vacation homes, you can experience all that and more.

You can work up your appetite by enjoying every water sport you can imagine and admiring the wildlife in the surrounding waters which have been called “the world's aquarium.” Spending the evening on the beach with family and friends? Enjoy a spread of tapas (and s'mores!) as you gather around the bonfire. While the sun continues to sink below the horizon, you can continue to immerse yourself in the culture with some fire dancing or salsa lessons as your evening entertainment.

Surrounded by Sapphire Seas in St. Barts

St. Barts is known for its world-class cuisine. The island has deep French heritage, and that comes through in many of the island's signature dishes. Through Cuvée, you can indulge in some of these dishes—and so much more—as you gather around your beach-set table.

You can dine under the stars with your very own BBQ beach night. As tiki torches light your path and illuminate your conversation, your Cuvée chef can prepare a spread of delicacies, grilling them over an open flame. And if that wasn't enough, the evening under the stars can come together as live music plays nearby. It's St. Barts at its most intimate—and most enticing!
