

Your Personality with Chiron in Cancer

There are many different ways to interpret the personality traits of Chiron-in-Cancer. Some Chiron in Cancer natives are hyper-emotional and care about their family and friends to an alarming degree. Chiron in Cancer people sacrifice their own needs to provide warmth and affection for their children. This trait can make them appear too dependent on others. These traits can actually be beneficial if the Chiron of Cancer native accepts themselves as they are.

People born under this sign are deeply concerned about their families. They might have suffered trauma in childhood and may be susceptible to criticism. They may also have a difficult time making decisions. A person born under the Cancer sign with Chiron can be an emotional healer and help others overcome their inner struggles. While this is an extreme example, a Chiron in Cancer personality trait doesn't always indicate the presence of a past life trauma.

The actions of others can also cause deep hurt for someone born under Chiron, Cancer. These emotional wounds may manifest as deep feelings of inadequacy and loneliness. This lack of love and affection may cause a person to feel unworthy of being loved. These wounds can cause them to avoid love and/or seek it in unhealthy relationships. Their self-esteem drops and they withdraw from relationships.

Source with Chiron (Cancer) often needs a companion to feel fulfilled. Their relationships are their way to alleviate pain and confirm fears of never being loved. Cancer will likely seek out an unattainable partner. Women with Chiron in Cancer need a mother who is the ideal Mother. They must also learn to love themselves without needing approval from others.

Chiron in Cancer can be very sensitive. They can be easily triggered by others, and may resort to using their friends and families to mask their emotions. They can also escape the pain and emptiness caused by their emotions through fantasies. These traits are not uncommon in Cancer males. This can be a problem in your life.

People with Chiron in their natal charts can feel unworthy and depressed. They might have had a difficult childhood and struggled to fit in with their peers. Because of this, they often harbor maternal instincts. These feelings can be channelled towards you and you'll be able to offer yourself the same support and love as you would for a child. You may feel unlovable because they will be receiving your love.

Chiron in Cancer is very personal and can require a lot of reflection on your own past experiences. While zodiac signs generally indicate your deepest wounds, they also have characteristics that can be too extreme. Aries' impulsivity, boldness, and inability to accept other people's opinions can be signs of their unconscious tendency. In some cases Chiron in Cancer may cause a person's anger toward those who love them most.